Professional Summary

I am a mobile software designer and developer with a history of productivity and successful project outcomes. Equipped with the skills, knowledge and drive necessary to push any project from ideation to delivery, I am able to function effectively both as an individual and in a group. I am a highly independent and motivated worker, able to produce a high quality of work under little supervision and within a short space of time.

Being a problem-solver, I make both creative and critical decisions that are efficient, effective and anticipative. I would fit most professional profiles with my versatility and ability to adapt to environmental and circumstantial factors. To sum it up, drive and dynamism would make me a valuable asset to any organization.
